Claridge's, the grandest dame in London

Catch all the buzzwords flying around at the moment and it seems there's an ever-expanding multiverse of reasons why people travel, from eclipse chasing to set-jetting and skillcations. But one of the best reasons might simply be that it's good for us. A chance to unplug and step away from our daily routines, to de-stress and keep our minds nimble by learning new languages, trying our hand at new activities, meeting new people. Dare we say it, but those seeking longevity could do worse than studying the perspectives that the Readers' Choice Awards 2026 provides. Based solely on votes from our UK readership, it shines a light on the places, people and outfits that positively encourage us to engage with the world. That could be a morning trek across the salt flats of Chile's Aguas Calientes, one of the experiences at Awasi Atacama, learning the way of the samurai thanks to the concierge at Mandarin Oriental, Tokyo or simply dipping into the zen moment in the swimming pool at The Chedi Muscat, palm trees reflected in the water around you. This is the 29th edition of our awards, and together it provides hundreds of good reasons to travel. More results, including top beaches, ski resorts, luggage and airport lounges, can be found online at cntraveller.com/readers-choice-awards

A SNAPSHOT OF OUR HOTEL LISTS

This summer The Savoy auctioned off much of its furniture ahead of a refurbishment – a chance to pick up a Georgian-style cabinet, set of silk curtains or bevelled wall mirror and recreate a little of its ambience at home. There are doubtless things about each of the London hotels here that we'd like to take back with us – the velvet-soft service of The Connaught, the culinary skills of the Hotel Café Royal – but their appeal, of course, lies in the fact they're not our homes. Every year we ask you to rate your favourite escapes according to a checklist of criteria, including service, food, location, design, activities, rooms and community investment, which result in the final scores you see here. Hotels are more than the sum of their parts, but it's handy to know you liked Broadwick Soho for its off-Carnaby Street setting,

1 Hotel Mayfair for its biophilic design and The Ned for its globetrotting restaurants. Scotland, the Cotswolds, Cornwall and the Lake District are the sweet spots elsewhere in the UK, with The Torridon's remote mountainside location a boon, Gilpin's ambitious food stirring your appetite, and Lucknam Park first past the post for several reasons, including its giddy-up horseback activities. Special mention goes to newcomers Louma and Saltmoore, and to Hotel Tresanton, a regular in these awards since 2002 and recognised for its Olga Polizzi-designed rooms. In Ireland, after being beaten by a nose last year, Ballyfin took first place, not least because of its affable service. Another shot of whiskey, anyone?
