

Wallpaper*

JANUARY 2019

*THE STUFF THAT REFINES YOU

Rotating 360° Alphabet by graduate Jinhwa Oh gives graphic design a revolutionary new twist

The future unfolded with our pick of the head-spinning, tomorrow-scaping, paradigm-shifting new forces in design, architecture, fashion and more

ENTER ►

Hotel Sanders ▲
Copenhagen

Former Danish Royal Ballet dancer and third-generation hotelier Alexander Kølpin has transformed an art nouveau building across the road from his former workplace, the Royal Danish Theatre, into a supremely elegant 54-room hotel. His attention to detail is apparent throughout the property, from the staff uniforms, made by Parisian label Older using a sustainable technical fabric, to the surprisingly un-Scandinavian, eclectic interiors by London-based studio Lind + Almond. With its restaurant serving up casual fare in a relaxed setting, cosy vintage bar and rooftop conservatory, Hotel Sanders has become a new social hub for Copenhagen. Micha van Dinther
Tordenskjoldsgade 15, hotelsanders.com.
Rates: from DKK2,895 (€390)

Hotel Koé ▲
Tokyo

Located among the blaring neon and packed 'X' crossings of Shibuya, Hotel Koé is no conventional property. Managed by Japanese fashion retailer Stripe International (the building's first floor is home to the company's flagship store) and designed by local studio Suppose Design Office, it is accessed through a light-filled ground floor, where an open-plan restaurant and bakery serves up dishes such as pink egg and ramen noodles to a DJ-curated soundtrack. But it is the ten teahouse-themed, super-minimal guest rooms that really turn heads, with their serene expanses of charcoal grey walls and night-sky blue carpets. Other highlights include a lounge with a sleek bar stretching the length of the space, and a small VIP area dominated by two paintings by Yoshitomo Nara and Hiroshi Sugita. Danielle Demetriou 27 Udagawacho, Shibuya-ku, hotelkoé.com.

Rates: from £140

TOP: A COUPE ROOM AT HOTEL SANDERS; ITS DESIGN INSPIRED BY LUXURY TRAIN CARRIAGES. ABOVE: HOTEL KOÉ'S XL ROOM, A 100 SQ M SPACE THAT NEEDS TO JAPANESE TEAHOUSES

